Medistri Announces Its New Digital Platform for Laboratory Testing Services

August 11th 2026

Medistri has expanded its Laboratory Services webpage with a new digital platform designed to make it easier for healthcare companies to explore testing capabilities, identify relevant analyses, and initiate laboratory projects.

Rather than replacing our existing Laboratory webpage, this new extension provides a more detailed and interactive way to access Medistri's complete testing portfolio.

Customers can now move from an overview of our Laboratory Services directly into individual analyses, with dedicated pages providing more information about each testing service.

Explore Our Complete Testing Portfolio

Laboratory requirements vary depending on the product, development stage, and applicable regulatory requirements. Finding the right analysis should therefore begin with clear and accessible information. The new platform organizes Medistri's testing portfolio into an intuitive, service-based experience.

Customers can browse available analyses and select individual services to access dedicated pages with more detailed information, making it easier to understand the available capabilities and identify services relevant to their project.

From Exploring a Service to Starting a Project

- Browse Medistri's complete testing portfolio
- Explore dedicated pages for individual analyses
- Identify services relevant to their project
- Provide product and project information
- Request quotations directly online
- Connect with Medistri's laboratory teams
- Sample requirements for analyses
- View indicative lead times for laboratory services

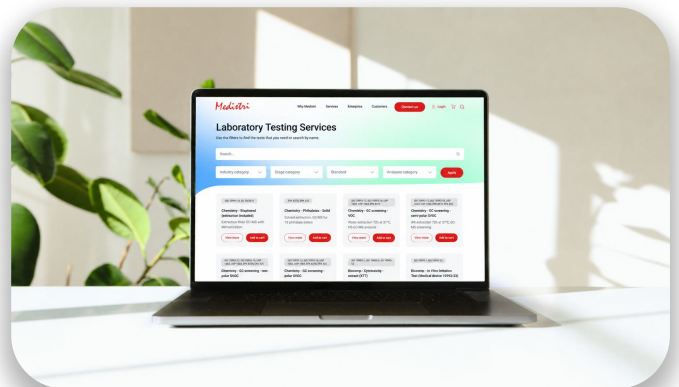

This structure helps provide our laboratory specialists with relevant project information earlier in the process, facilitating communication and supporting more efficient project initiation.

Visit Medistri's Laboratory Services webpage to explore our complete testing portfolio and discover the new experience here.

To discuss an upcoming laboratory project, contact our team at contact@medistri.com.

Extending the Medistri Digital Experience

The new platform represents an extension of Medistri's existing digital environment, providing customers with another way to interact directly with our services and expertise.

By transforming our testing portfolio into a more accessible and interactive experience, customers can move more easily from discovering a laboratory capability to discussing their specific requirements with our specialists.
